

International Association of Commercial Collectors Opens Registration for 2019 Convention

Annual event showcases new exchange of ideas and offers education opportunities for commercial collection professionals.

(MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. x, 2019) The International Association of Commercial Collectors, Inc. (IACC) will host its 48th Annual Convention Jan. 16-18, 2019, at the JW Marriott Marquis Miami in Miami, Fla. Register now at commercialcollector.com for special early bird registration rates, including additional discounted pricing for IACC members.

The IACC Annual Convention will offer three days of dynamic seminars and meetings that bring together commercial collection leaders from around the world. Attendees will learn about the newest innovations in commercial collection and take part in training, industry forums and networking events. The value of the ideas exchanged in IACC's open and welcoming atmosphere is worth the price of attendance.

"IACC is excited to host Annual Convention in downtown Miami this year and we are thrilled by the level of enthusiasm we have received by those interested in attending," said IACC President Bill Mann. "The Annual Convention is created specifically with our association's members best interests in mind - join us in the sun for premiere industry event of the year."

Agenda items for the 2019 convention include sessions on the value of social media as an investigative tool and collection activity, challenges facing the commercial collections industry in the new year and a can't miss keynote presentation by Dave Wannstedt, former National Football League head coach of the Chicago Bears and Miami Dolphins, on "Building and Maintaining a Winning Team or Business."

Make plans to join us at the IACC Annual Convention for these and other exclusive events. Early registration ends Friday, Dec. 7. More information on the IACC and its upcoming convention is available on the IACC website, <http://www.commercialcollector.com>. To register for IACC's convention visit the IACC website.

ABOUT IACC

The International Association of Commercial Collectors, Inc. (IACC) is an international trade association comprised of more than 350 commercial collection agencies, attorneys, law lists and vendors. With members throughout the U.S. and in 25 international countries, IACC is the largest organization of commercial collection specialists in the world. The IACC contributes to the growth and profitability of its members by delivering essential educational and professional tools and services in a highly collaborative and participatory environment. For more information, visit www.commercialcollector.com